2. In autumn 1950, while work on several huts and on the fence was in progress, quarters were occupied by about 300 men and 40 to 55 tanks. The shoulder-boards of the soldiers were marked with 12-inch, black, cloth letters. The tanks were estimated [REDACTED] to have been approximately two meters in height, 25X1 6.5 meters in length, and two meters in width. On the sides of each tank, 25X1 there were six bogie wheels, each with a diameter of about 60 to 70 centimeters. The front and rear sections of the turrets were steeply sloped; particularly 25X1 in the front. On the top of each turret was located a rod-aerial about one meter high. Every tank was manned by a crew of four men and armed with an eight- or nine-centimeter gun. This gun was characterized by a muzzle brake and a barrel five meters long. Each tank had a removable side plate [REDACTED] 25X1 Groups of 10 or 11 tanks [REDACTED] 25X1 [REDACTED] painted in the same color: white, red, or yellow. 25X1

3. The grounds covered by the hutment quarters were located on the south side of the road from Rositten (N 54-28, E 20-27) to Klein Dexen (N 54-27, E 20-32). 25X1 The area was shaped in the form of a right triangle, with dimensions of 300 meters by 300 meters by 450 meters, and was surrounded by a two-meter high barbed wire fence. See sketch No. 12. [REDACTED] 25X1 (see sketch No. 12) by the following route: [REDACTED] 25X1

4. [REDACTED] Soviet barracks at the NW entrance to Bagrationovsk (Preussisch Eylau; N 54-27, E 20-39) on the north side of the road from Roditten (N 54-28, E 20-34). All of the barracks were of like dimensions, approximately 50 meters long by 20 to 25 meters wide by 12 meters high, and each building had two rows of windows. [REDACTED] 25X1
